Khvanchkara, the most valued red wine from Georgia, is named after the place of origin PDO Micro-Zone “Khvanchkara” in Racha region, crafted from indigenous Aleksandrouli and Mujuretuli grapes.

The Koncho winery name comes from the name of one of the Kindzmarauli JSC founders, Tamaz Konchoshvili.

Terroir:

Aleksandrouli and Mujuretuli grapes grown in Khvanchkara micro-zone on tiny plots owned by local peasants with very limited production at 450-750m above sea level on the southern slope of the Lechkumi mountain range (right bank of the River Rioni gorge) in Racha, North-western Georgia.

Vinification:

The healthy bunches are selected by hand; at the end of October and beginning of November. Controlled temperature alcoholic fermentation is stopped by cooling to preserve natural residual sweetness.

Variety: Alexandreuli 70%, Mudzhuretuli 30%

Residual Sugar: 34.3 g/L

Serving suggestion and food pairing: Its velvety off-dry complex forest berries nature reveals best at 16°C with white meat dishes, young soft cheeses, moderately sweet desserts and fruits.
